

Open Submission Programs for the 2023 AALS Annual Meeting

Submission dates vary

Proposal Submission Form

Questions: events@aals.org

The Program Committee for the 2023 Annual Meeting is pleased to request proposals for several types of open submission programs. Open submission programs are organized by individuals and not sponsored by AALS Sections. All Annual Meeting attendees are eligible to participate as speakers.

The 2023 Annual Meeting theme, selected by AALS President Erwin Chemerinsky, is How Law Schools Can Make a Difference. In his presidential address, Chemerinsky elaborated that, in an ideologically divided society, the “only thing about which there seems to be a consensus is that American society, and the world, are facing unprecedented dangers.” Among those dangers, he said, are climate change, “a rise in authoritarian governments in many countries in the world,” “ongoing deeply embedded racial inequalities in the United States,” “[t]remendous inequities . . . in terms of access to justice,” “the fragility of American democracy,” and more.

In choosing this theme, President Chemerinsky expressed his hope “that all of us – liberal or conservative – can agree that change is essential and that law schools must make a positive difference.” He asked that we consider broadly both the positive difference law schools should be making and what steps we should take to bring about positive changes.

With respect to the difference that law schools should make, we ask you to consider not only how law schools can make a difference for students, staff, and faculty within their own hallways, but also how law schools can make a difference for marginalized communities, for governments, in civil discourse, for judges, in public service, for staff and faculty, and in legal education and society as a whole. With respect to the approaches that law schools should take to create change, we ask you to explore all the details in your solutions’-based approaches, e.g., what it might look like to litigate the identified problem or what steps would be necessary to win in the court of public opinion.

We strongly encourage program organizers to consider using the 2023 Annual Meeting theme in framing their proposals, though it is not a condition for submission or selection.

Finally, we want to highlight the plan to have the 2023 conference in person in San Diego, California. After two years of virtual meetings, we urge you to think about how you might best attract and engage an audience for your panels and programs. We welcome and encourage your creativity in this endeavor. For example, you might consider how you may replicate the benefits of Zoom chat during your in-person session, or you might plan to host a pre-conference Zoom session that inspires excitement about your in-person panel. The possibilities are endless. We also recognize the temptation to center proposals on the challenges that we are currently facing with the pandemic, but we truly encourage you to look ahead and beyond these issues in developing your proposals.

Types of Program and Panel Proposals

The AALS schedules four types of open submission programs (all more fully described below):

- Open Source programs offer an opportunity to present either traditional or innovatively structured programs that stand apart from those proposed by AALS sections.
- Discussion Groups provide a setting for focused discussions among a small group of invited discussants and engaged participation by the audience.
- Symposia are extended sessions (half-day or longer) that focus on in-depth scholarly exploration of a topic of academic interest.
- Hot Topic programs focus on topics that emerged too late in the year to be included in section programming.

Open Source, Discussion Group, and Hot Topic programs will run for one hour and 40 minutes. Open Source and Hot Topic programs should allow at least 15 minutes for audience participation, and Discussion Groups should allow 30 minutes or more for audience participation. Symposia run half-day (3 hours) or full-day (6 hours) and should include appropriate time for audience participation.

Deadlines

Proposals for Discussion Groups and Open Source programs are due April 11, 2022.

Proposals for Symposium programs are due May 9, 2022.

Proposals for Hot Topic programs are due October 17, 2022.

General Submission Guidelines

Full-time faculty members or administrators at AALS Member or Fee-Paid law schools may propose programs. International faculty, visiting faculty (who have no permanent affiliation at another Member or Fee-Paid law school), graduate students, and non-law school faculty are not eligible to submit proposals but may serve as speakers.

A proposal for any of the four program categories should include:

- Program title.
- Names, affiliations, and contact information of the program organizers.
- Detailed description of the proposed program, including (a) the format of the proposed program; (b) an explanation of the overall goal of the program; (c) a description of how diversity is achieved by the program's speakers, content, and/or structure; and (d) if applicable, an indication that one or more speakers will be selected from a call for participants.
- Names, titles, and affiliations of speakers to be invited including links to or copies of their curricula vitae. Except for Discussion Group discussants, the number of speakers per program or Symposium panel should be limited to a maximum of four, plus one moderator. Discussion Groups typically have between eight and twelve discussants. Speakers should represent a mix of institutional affiliations.
- If applicable, proposals should name the journal or edited volume that will be publishing any papers that are presented at the program.

Program organizers should take the AALS core value of diversity into account when developing their proposals and identifying speakers. Relevant diversity considerations include but are not limited to speakers' gender; race; years of teaching experience; faculty status (i.e., junior/senior faculty, tenured/tenure-track/clinical/non-tenure-track faculty); type of law school; geographic location; and viewpoint. To further viewpoint diversity in programming in particular, proposals should include speakers who will represent a range of philosophical, ideological, doctrinal, and/or methodological perspectives on the program topic as framed.

The scheduled program time should be used only for the academic discussion itself; if there is any “business” to take care of (e.g., discussion of whether to form a new AALS section or combine with an existing section), that should take place outside of the allotted time. Examples of successful proposals submitted in prior years are available online.

If you have questions, please contact events@aals.org

General Selection Guidelines

In reviewing proposals in any category, the Program Committee will consider the overall quality of the program and whether the proposal:

- Is well-written and thoughtfully constructed;
- Is likely to be of interest to Annual Meeting attendees;
- Is creative in including and facilitating audience engagement;
- Includes presenters who further the diversity goals described above; and
- Includes topics or viewpoints that further the diversity goals described above.

Program Committee for the 2023 Annual Meeting

ROBERT B. (BOBBY) AHDIEH, Texas A&M University School of Law

CASSANDRA L. HILL, Northern Illinois University College of Law

MICHAEL J. KAUFMAN, Santa Clara University School of Law

JENNIFER MNOOKIN, University of California, Los Angeles School of Law

ANGELA I. ONWUACHI-WILLIG, Boston University School of Law, Chair

JOHN K. PIERRE, Southern University Law Center

PETER B. (BO) RUTLEDGE, University of Georgia School of La

Open Source Programs

Proposals Due: April 11, 2022

Proposals should follow the General Submission Guidelines set forth above.

Open Source programs may take many shapes: programs may be interdisciplinary and cut across the interests of two or more sections, address themes outside the scope of any existing section, or focus on specific issues such as recent cases or developments in a given area of law.

In addition, we welcome innovative proposals for Open Source programs that depart from the typical format of having speakers present 10- or 20-minute talks. For example, Open Source proposals might offer the following:

- A roundtable-style program in which speakers answer a series of questions posed by the moderator and the audience.
- A program where speakers engage in one or more role-play sessions.
- A program that invites extended engagement with specific scholarly work, such as an “Author Meets Reader” program that discusses a significant new book, or a “Living Legend” program that invites attention to the overall work of an established scholarly figure.
- A program that consists of short presentations coupled with questions designed to set the presentations against one another to foster debate and discussion.

Proposals may reserve one or more spots for speakers selected from responses to a call for participation. For accepted proposals, any speakers selected from a call for participation must be identified and submitted to AALS no later than September 23, 2022.

Open Source Program proposals are due April 11, 2022, and should be submitted using the online submission form. Questions may be directed to events@aals.org

Discussion Group Programs

Proposals Due: April 11, 2022

Proposals for a Discussion Group program should follow the General Submission Guidelines set forth above.

A Discussion Group program provides a group of discussants the opportunity to engage in a sustained conversation about a shared topic of interest. Discussion Groups will not feature formal presentations. Instead, each discussant will typically prepare brief remarks of 3-5 minutes (Some past discussion groups have referred to these presentations as “opening statements”). These initial presentations are intended to stimulate a lively and engaging discussion that will include both the discussants and members of the audience.

Discussion Groups may be limited to a single substantive area and subject or address a broad topic (past topics have included, “Equitable Remedies in Civil Rights Litigation” or “Post-COVID-19 Online and Hybrid Learning Pedagogy and Best Practices”). No matter how the Discussion Groups structure their topic or focus, they will ideally offer an opportunity for discussants in related fields to bring useful perspectives to the conversation. For example, a Discussion Group on “Free Speech and Community Policing” could invite perspectives from multiple vantage points, including public law and criminal law as well as critical, feminist, and comparative law perspectives.

Discussion Group sessions should have at least eight and no more than twelve invited discussants, including the moderator. Proposals should identify approximately two-thirds of the discussants and leave the remaining one-third to be selected from an open call for participation. For accepted proposals, AALS staff will post calls for participation in coordination with the Discussion Group’s organizers. The final discussant list chosen by the organizers is subject to review and approval by the Program Committee.

Once all discussants are identified, they should provide to the organizers one-page abstracts that preview their 3-5 minute opening remarks. Discussion Group organizers may also wish to share all discussants’ abstracts with each other before the Annual Meeting. This process will allow all discussants to anticipate others’ planned remarks.

As with other Annual Meeting programs, conference attendees who are not invited discussants are welcome to attend the Discussion Group as audience members, and the moderator should reserve at least 30 minutes of the program for audience members to participate in the discussion.

Organizers will serve as moderators of the Discussion Group unless another moderator is identified in the proposal. Organizers are responsible for ensuring timely communication among the discussants before the Annual Meeting, including disseminating any abstracts or other materials.

Discussion Group program proposals are due April 11, 2022 and should be submitted using the online submission form. Questions may be directed to events@aals.org.

Symposium Programs

Proposals Due: May 9, 2022

Symposium programs are full-day or half-day programs that conduct an in-depth exploration of a topic of academic and practical interest to the profession. The Committee is particularly interested in programs that connect to the conference theme, How Law Schools Can Make a Difference.

The Committee encourages Symposium organizers to arrange for the publication of the papers in a journal or edited volume.

If the Symposium will be published in a student-edited law review, the AALS will waive the registration fee for up to two student editors from that law review to attend the Annual Meeting.

Proposals for Symposium programs may reserve one or more spots for speakers selected from responses to a call for participation. For accepted proposals, speakers selected from a call for participation must be identified no later than September 23, 2022.

Because Symposium sessions will run simultaneously with other programs during the Annual Meeting, attendees may attend panels more sporadically than is common for traditional symposia. For that reason, organizers should think of each symposium session as a self-contained event and must be attentive to ensuring diversity, including viewpoint diversity, in each session.

Additional Submission Guidelines

In addition to following the General Submission Guidelines set forth above, Symposium proposals should include:

- An abstract of no more than 750 words about the Symposium program and its anticipated contribution to legal scholarship.
- A 250-word-or-less abstract for each proposed Symposium paper.
- An indication of whether the request is for a full-day or half-day Symposium.
- A description of any publication arrangement (or potential arrangement) for the program in a journal or edited volume.

Additional Selection Guidelines

In reviewing Symposium proposals, in addition to applying its General Selection Guidelines, the Program Committee will consider the quality of the paper abstracts, the likelihood that the resulting papers will substantially contribute to the scholarship in the field, the success of the proposal in achieving diversity for each Symposium session and across the whole of the Symposium, and the proposal's relationship to the conference's annual theme.

Symposium program proposals are due May 9, 2022 and should be submitted using the online submission form. Questions may be directed to events@aals.org

Hot Topic Programs

Proposals Due: October 17, 2022.

Hot Topic programs focus on topics that emerged too late in the year to be included in other types of programs. Hot Topic program proposals that are selected by the Committee will be assigned a program time slot by AALS staff. Due to scheduling constraints, program times cannot be changed to accommodate specific speakers.

Hot Topic program organizers should check the preliminary Annual Meeting program on the AALS website to be sure that there is no substantial replication of the substance of a proposed hot topic program by a program already on the schedule.

Additional Submission Guidelines

In addition to following the General Submission Guidelines set forth above, Hot Topic proposals should include an explanation of (1) why the topic is “hot” and (2) why it was not possible to make the proposal in one of the other program categories with an earlier deadline.

Additional Selection Guidelines

In reviewing Hot Topic proposals, in addition to applying its General Selection Guidelines, the Program Committee will pay particular attention to (1) the timeliness of the proposal’s subject matter, and (2) whether the proposal’s topic substantially replicates an Annual Meeting program already on the schedule. We note that if years past are any indicator, we typically receive significantly more strong submissions for “Hot Topic” programs than we are able to schedule, so please recognize the likely competition for these important sessions.

Hot Topic Program proposals are due October 17, 2022. Proposals should be submitted using the online submission form. Questions may be directed to events@aals.org